COMMUNITY COLLEGE
PENN VALLEY

Join Metropolitan Community College for the second annual Jazz in the Valley event being held on the MCC-Penn Valley Campus on Friday, Sept. 30 from 6-9 p.m.

Kansas City has a strong history of Jazz. Music legends like Charlie “Bird” Parker visited the Musicians Foundation on Vine for late-night jams, and Count Basie performed at the Drum Room. A variety of legendary Jazz musicians made Kansas City a frequent stop. Director and Kansas City native Robert Altman produced his Jazz-Age movie “Kansas City” here, using local talent. He revitalized the area for his set and expressed that there was no other place to produce his movie. Because Kansas City was considered the “Paris of the Midwest”, Jazz helped cultivate the persona. Jazz greats, Lonnie McFadden, Charles Williams, and contemporary artists have continue to keep this genre alive.

To honor this history, the MCC-Penn Valley campus invites you to join the second annual Jazz in the Valley fundraiser which will include performances by acclaimed local artists and MCC-Penn Valley alumni. Two bands will perform including the MCC-Penn Valley Jazz Group. This group will include former students and faculty. We will also host one national headliner - Minus2 - for the event. Proceeds from this event will support the creation of a Music Engineering program at MCC.
